

Opposed.

I do not think any Mode should be tested in order to gain privileges in that mode. Learning and trying new modes should not have barriers such as a requirement for testing. Amateur radio is a testing and learning ground, and is segmented from other services so that improper operation by an unskilled operator is not likely to impact other services.